ABSTRACT

This Aklanon-English dictionary consists of a list of basic root words or word bases of Aklanon. The dictionary is designed to be used both by native speakers of Aklanon and by foreign learners. For the former, it can serve to: (1) establish a uniform system of spelling, (2) broaden or intensify the use and understanding of idiomatic standard American English, (3) serve as a reference book for the standard speech of Kalibo, (4) broaden the vocabulary of those interested in studying their native language, and (5) introduce a more linguistically oriented study of Aklanon. For foreign learners, it is useful as a language learning tool. The dictionary is preceded by a discussion of root words and their derivations, an outline of the six basic grammatical functions and the basic parts of speech of Aklanon, a discussion of morphophonemic change, and an explanation of the conventions for spelling the Aklanon dialect. A short bibliography of relevant references follows the dictionary. (CLK)

In Memoriam

Although many have given me credit for initiating and researching The Study Of The Aklanon Dialect, this book would not have been possible if it were not for the cooperation, the efforts, the dedication and the wisdom of Professor Vicente Salas Reyes.

As this book was going to press, we received news of his untimely death on Saturday, May 17, 1969. Although he was 82 years old, his intellect, wit and cooperative spirit made him a truly unequalled Aklanon expert -- for not only was his wisdom his own, he wanted to share it with all his fellowmen, even up to his dying breath.

This book, then, is born and duly baptized in the death of that great man. May His Soul Live On By The Grace Of God In Eternal Bliss; And May His Spirit Live On In Aklan That Others Of This Province May Know Him And Emulate Him. His life and his death are a challenge to us all.

PREFACE

This present book is the result of four years of painstaking research and re-edition. It is a companion and follow-up volume to the GRAMMAR, published a year ago; but it is far more necessary and practical than its companion volume.

FOR AKLANONS it can serve the following functions:

(1) to establish a uniform system of spelling throughout the province;
(2) to broaden or intensify the use and understanding of idiomatic standard American English, particularily for students and teachers;
(3) to serve as a reference book for the standard speech [including borrowed and adopted terms] of Kalibo--the geographical, educational, financial, mercantile and political center of the province of Aklan;
(4) to broaden the vocabulary and knowledge of those interested in studying their own native dialect, since not only common, but also "deep" and foreign words are included as they are actually used;
(5) to introduce a more linguistically oriented study of the Aklanon language in order to break off from a long-standing tradition of "folk linguistics" and so-called "dialect experts".

FOR FOREIGN LEARNERS [whether Western or other Filipinos] it has the following uses:

(1) to help in translating the words of the dialect into the more reachable idiom of English;
(2) to indicate the actual use of root words as they occur in current Aklanon speech;
(3) to act as a pronunciation guide, since accents and phonemic spellings [with some exceptions] are indicated;
(4) to serve as a list of the most common and several uncommon words which could be memorized from time to time.

FOR LINGUISTS we hope to provide another humble treatment of a hitherto unresearched language and enrich the catalog of literature available on the less known dialects and languages of the world. In addition, the word list contained herein should be of interest to etymologists as they will note the large number of reflexes or words related to other Philippine dialects and languages.

Neither this dictionary nor its authors purport to have gathered every word in the Aklanon language, but a major number are certainly represented. Native speakers who may browse through this book will be surprised at seeing a very large representation of English and Spanish words. Some may be tempted to criticize their presence here. However, one need only eavesdrop on any conversation of local people--be it formal or informal--and hear for himself the overwhelming number of borrowed terms in actual use. The authors have operated on the principle that the sounds floating in Aklanon air make up the total part and parcel of Aklanon speech and should be represented here. For those who will be startled to see borrowed, foreign or vulgar words we ask their forbearance and understanding in this matter.

PROF. VICENTE SALAS REYES
PCV R. DAVID PAUL ZORC
MR. NICOLAS L. PRADO

PLEASE NOTE that the letters "m", "k" and "p" have been greatly reduced in size by eliminating the ma-, ka-, pa-, and pang- prefixes and listing the words under each root word. Hence, "matám-is" is found under "tám-is", "panindahán" under "tínda(h)". This will involve some creative thinking on the part of the user, for he will have to discover a root word before he can look up any entry in this dictionary.

I. ALPHABETICAL ORDER

For the sake of convenience and to eliminate the doubling of entries, the following alphabetical order was selected, including: the vernacularization of foreign sounds and the union of the vowel sounds "i - e" and "o - u". Letters on a horizontal line are alphabetically equivalent.

1.	a
2.	b	v
3.	k	c, qu, cu
4.	d	j /dy/
5.	e	/ǵ/ [Aklanon fricative consonant]
6.	g
7.	h	j /h/
8.	i - e
9.	l
10.	m
11.	n	ñ /ny/
12.	ng
13.	o - u
14.	p	f
15.	r
16.	s	z, c
17.	t	ch /ts/
18.	w
19.	y

In cases where traditional Aklanon would spell several words identically because of omitted accents (stress) or glottal stops, we give first precedence to stress difference [penultimate stress precedes final stress] and then to open vowels [(h)] before glottalized vowels ['], as in:

bága(h)	(n)	glowing embers
bága'	(n)	lung(s)
bagá'	(adj)	swollen
túbo(h)	(n)	pipe, tube
túbo'	(RV7)	to sprout, grow; increase
tubó	(n)	sugar cane
bobo	(n)	dolt, simpleton, fool
bo-bo'	(RV2)	to pour out

6

II. THE SPELLING OF THE ENTRIES

Many readers may well be surprised at the spelling of some of the entries in this dictionary. Since Aklanon is a language where the traditional spelling of words very, very closely matches the pronunciation of the words, the authors have chosen to represent even foreign words with a native spelling. There is a long-standing tradition of such a procedure in any written language. Even modern English tends to simplify its spelling by changing "night" to "nite", "although" to "altho" and "catalogue" to "catalog". Aklanon itself has freely adopted the English "evacuate" into the more native and commonly accepted "bakwit", "vulcanize" into "pabulkit"; the Spanish "chinelas" to "sinilas", "horas" to "oras", and "jabon" to "sabón". Since the Institute of the National Language encourages and practices such in the development of Pilipino, Aklanons have a precedent for their own dialect. Hence, although some spellings may seem ridiculous or humorous at the present time, they can eventually be expected to be popular, vernacularized words, such as

"ice cream"	/ayskrim/
"jeep"	/dyip/
"hollow block"	/haloblak/
"nurse"	/nars/
"featherduster"	/pederdas/
"floorwax"	/plorwaks/

The authors have also taken a step forward in spelling all the truly Aklanon or Filipino names of towns and places in the correct vernacular spelling, retaining only the Spanish and American names in the spelling of the original language. It is urged that the municipal councils of each town adopt such spellings to insure uniformity and conventionality throughout the province, as in

OLD VERSION	CORRECTED SPELLING
Libacao	Libakaw
Calivo	Kalibo
Daguitan	Dagitan
Malinao	Malinaw
Laguinbanua	Eagingbanwa

However, names of towns and places that are not native Aklanon words should retain the spelling of the original foreign language; such as in "New Washington", "Numancia", "Ibajay" or "Roxas City".

Traditional Aklanon spelling does not account for three symbols which linguists would expect in a phonological transcription. We account for them by using the following symbols along with the traditional Aklanon spelling.

- Final pronounced, but traditionally unspelled /h/ is written in as (h), as in: símba(h), tínda(h), daeá(h) to show that the /h/ sound will appear when the root is affixed, as in: simbahan, tindahan, daehon.

- The glottal stop, transcribed as /ʔ/ by linguists, has traditionally been spelled with the hyphen "-" by Aklanons when in the middle of a word as in: sin-o, gae-om, an-om, bo-bo, us-us, ba-ba'. However, it had been unspelled at the end of a word, except for a few who used the grave accent /ˋ/ to signal its presence. The authors have chosen to show the presence of a final glottal stop with the apostrophe, ', as in: báho', túbo', baó', tubá'. In this way, it acts as a clue for the foreign learner to the correct pronunciation, yet it does not disturb an Aklanon's reading of the text. Some linguists had chosen the symbol q for the glottal stop, but this has proven very confusing to non-linguists: both native speakers and foreign learners alike.

- Aklanon spelling rarely, if ever, accounts for stress. Since stress is most important in distinguishing the meaning of words, the authors have endeavored to indicate stress as often as possible with the acute accent ´. Certain stress pairs will show the importance of such a symbol in the accurate transcription of Aklanon, especially for foreign learners:

túbo	(n)	pipe, tube
tubó	(n)	sugar cane
píto	(RV)	to whistle
pitó	(n)	seven, 7
hápon	(n)	afternoon
hapón	(n)	Japan[ese]
tábo'	(RV)	to fetch, meet
tabó'	(n)	dipper, ladle

III. INTRODUCTION -- HOW TO UNDERSTAND AND USE THIS DICTIONARY

This dictionary is a list of the basic root words or word bases of the Aklanon dialect (considered a language by linguists). If one only wishes to get the general meaning of words it should be relatively simple to use. However, if the reader wishes to reap the full fruit of all the information contained herein, such as how particular roots are used, or how they can grow into other parts of speech, we urge him to master the grammatical explanations which will follow this section.

The authors have endeavored to present the following information in this dictionary:

1. The ROOT WORD, given first in broad or expanded type, followed thereafter by the root word's most important and commonly used DERIVATIONS. For example:

tawo(h) -- katawohan, kinatawohan, natawo, etc.
inom -- ilimnon, imna, ginainom, etc.
tinda(h) -- tindahan, panindahan, pangpanindahan, etc.

2. The ETYMOLOGY OR ORIGIN OF THE WORD, if it is not native Kalibo Aklanon. For example:

kabayo' [Sp]	borrowed or derived from SPANISH
bakwit [Eng]	borrowed or derived from ENGLISH
ayos [Tag]	borrowed or derived from TAGALOG
boesit [Ch]	borrowed or derived from CHINESE
putli' [Hil]	borrowed or derived from HILIGAYNON
arigato [Jp]	borrowed or derived from JAPANESE
aeokait [Lib]	used in the vicinity of LIBAKAW
tako' [Bkd]	used by mountain or remote peoples
eungaeog [Ibj]	used in the vicinity of IBAJAY
baeangag [Oak]	coming from old or "deep" Aklanon

panghingaean	[Nab]	developed by the late Dr. Artemio Nabor of Kalibo, Aklan.
rugto	[Kin]	used in Kinaray-a mixed areas

3. The particular CLASSIFICATION OF THE WORD if it is not part of the commonly accepted speech medium for the general public, such as:

[FE]	a Filipino English translation, not generally known or used by native speakers of English.
[AE]	an American English translation, not generally known or used by Filipino speakers of English.
[idm]	an idiom or idiomatic expression of the Aklanons.
[expr]	an expression or phrase more or less current to Aklanon.
[slg]	a slang or composed term used generally by the younger generation in their common parlance among one another.
[sup]	a superstitious term or belief.
[stf]	a scientific term
[cor]	a corruption of some other word, for example, making a Spanish sounding word from an English term.
[gen]	a generally used term; part of standard accepted speech.
[vul]	a vulgar or indecent term, recorded here for the benefit of foreigners, and also so that Aklanons may know the idiomatic English equivalents.

4. Some ADDITIONAL INFORMATION about a word or its meaning, cross-references to the GRAMMAR, or to other parts of this DICTIONARY. For example:

[Ctr:]	a contraction of some other word or phrase:
	birona'	[Ctr: pabay-i runá']
	rang	[Ctr: ro akon nga]
[Abr:]	an abbreviation of some longer form:
	mga	[Abr: mangá]
[Alt:]	an alternate form for the word is some other:
	riya	[Alt: diya]
	matlaong	[Alt: maton]
	halimonon	[Alt: hilamonon]
[Syn:]	a synonym or word with roughly the same meaning is some other word:
	tueun-an	[Syn: libro]
	uhong	[Syn: amamakoe]
	kunó	[Syn: mana]
[Opp:]	the opposite of the word given is some other:
	tonton	[Opp: batak]
	putí'	[Opp: itúm]
	tugák	[Opp: hugót]
	intok	[Opp: eagko']

[Cf:]	confer with or refer to some other word or entry for additional information:

mus-an	[Cf: manok]
Altavas	[Cf: Jimeno]
timog	[Cf: hangin]
morado	[Cf: saging]

[G.]	refer to the GRAMMAR (Zorc, de la Cruz), page [as listed].
[D.]	refer to this DICTIONARY, page [as listed].

There are certain occasions in Aklanon when a root word is never used in its base form, but occurs with a prefix. In order to be consistent in listing roots, we list the root word followed by the prefix which must accompany it, such as:

sunsun]ma[	"masunsun"
labar]pang[	"panglabar"
hidait]pag[	"paghidait"
mungaya']ha[	"hamungaya'"

5. THE PART OF SPEECH OR USE of the word presented. This will be discussed in more detail in the next unit. However, by way of illustration, note that a simple abbreviation like "RV2" can reveal a lot. "RV2" means that the root word is a REGULAR VERB of the SECOND CLASS, that it can be conjugated according to the actor focus forms [naga-, nag-, ma-, etc.] to stress the actor or doer; but that when it is used to stress an object, it will take the forms of the Instrument Focus verb conjugation [gina-, gin-, i-, -an, ig-, etc.]. Hence, any verb root listed as RV2 will emphasize a direct object according to the forms described: ibaligya', itus-on, taw-an, igbutang, ginaeubong, etc.

6. THE ENGLISH MEANING of the Visayan word or phrase, based on standard or colloquial mid-Western American English. Since part of the purpose of this book is to present idiomatic American English to Aklanons for their use in school and in general communiques or discussions, certain Aklanon forms that might be regular when based on the grammar of the dialect will be presented because the English itself reveals a different structure or some sort of idiom. For example, normally the authors do not list the occurrance of the causative]pa- for every verb root, because almost any verb can take this causative form. However, in those cases where English itself would use a different form than the causative, the Aklanon causative construction is presented in order to reveal the English variations. The Aklanon verb kaon (eat) has a regular causative form in pakaon, but the English causative is not "let eat" but rather "feed". Since the English evidences such a drastic change away from the Aklanon idiom, an entry is made to reveal such a phenomenon. The same can be said for the inclusion of such forms as:

hueam / borrow	pahueam / lend	(CV)
tam-is / sweet	patam-is / sweeten	(CV)
barbas / beard	pamarbas / shave	(DV)
asawa / spouse	pangasawa / court and marry	(DV)

There are certain occasions where no English word is known to the authors to equivalently represent the Aklanon term. This is generally the case when the scientific name of animals, plants, and so on is only approximated or given as a type such as

bolináw	(n)	[fish] - a type of fish
guyóm	(n)	[ant] - a type of ant
apeod	(adj)	[having the flavor of an unripe banana]
tiáw	(n)	[fish--delicious, soft-boned]

In some cases, however, the authors have been able to identify the scientific names of plants and trees, and so both the general English description and the accurate scientific name are presented, such as:

íba'	(n)	[tree, fruit--very sour] Averrhoa bilimbi L.
tubó	(n)	sugar cane. Saccharum officinarum
tángead	(n)	[lemon grass--used for seasoning] Andropogon citratus DC

It is imperative to call to the attention of the Filipino reader that English has a particular phenomenon not generally present in Visayan, namely the occurrence of several levels of vocabulary, such as scientific, general and/or vulgar. In such instances, Aklanon usually has only one term applicable which can be medical, polite or vulgar as the user intends or the situation suggests. By way of example, if an American goes to a doctor, he would have to speak using polite or scientific terms: "I have been moving my bowels more often lately." The same person talking to his friends might come out with the more vulgar: "I'm always shitting." The Aklanon word in either case would be "pandiho". The authors have therefore tried to give as many possible English meanings, but marking them well so that one can understand in which environment the terms are to be used with English speakers:

utót	(n)	flatulence [stf]; bad air [gen]; "fart" [vul]
bóto'	(n)	penis [stf]; male organ [gen]; "cock, prick" [vul]

IV. ROOT WORDS AND THEIR DERIVATIONS

Root words or word bases are those words which carry the principal meaning in structures like: táwo(h)/person, pueá(h)/red, káon/eat and the like. They are the basic units of meaning from which most other meaningful words grow--that's why they are called "roots", because other words grow from them. In English, root words are not always very easy to locate. It is difficult, for example, to isolate the root in: "food, feed, fed, feast", yet there is something basic to each. In Aklanon, on the other hand, roots are always pretty easy to find. There are, first of all, SIMPLE ROOTS, such as bilin which does not change its form in: pagbilin, bilinan, binilin. Or tapus in: pagkatapus, tumapus, katapusan. Simple roots never change their form; they can always be found whole. But there also are, secondly, REDUCED ROOTS, which are root words that undergo some sort of change from the simple root form. For example:

ROOT WORD	NEW FORM	REDUCED ROOT
adto	adtunan	*adtun
bukid	kabukiran	*bukir
inom	ilimnon	*imn
banwa	kasimanwa	*manwa

sueód	hanueód	*nueód
mayád	kamaeayran	*mayr
tubó	katubwan	*tubw

The first step towards understanding what changes are taking place depends on knowing the different types of affixation the root word can undergo in Aklanon.

AFFIXES are syllables attached to the root word. They can be attached to the root in just about any place: beginning - PREFIXES, middle - INFIXES, including REDUPLICATIONS, or end - SUFFIXES. Affixes make it possible for a root word to get newer, more expanded or expandable meanings. They give form, function and even meaning (beyond the root word's basic meaning). One current theory maintains that Philippine languages have root words which are not members of any particular part of speech; rather, they are roots which can grow into or be used as parts of speech within the sentence. Alone, they have meaning, but not function. There is a good deal of truth in this theory, though more research need be undertaken to see how well it would describe Aklanon and other Philippine languages.

Let us discuss the various affixes one by one:

[pfx] (1) PREFIXES stand before the root word. They are of two sorts--standard prefixes, which are always the very first part of the word:

na---	natapus
nag---	nagbasa(h)
pag---	pagkaon
ma---	maadto

and postpositive prefixes, which come immediately before the root word, but (can) follow the standard prefix:

]ka	nagakahueog
]pa	ginapaadto
]pang	nagpangasawa

[ifx] (2) INFIXES are put into the root word, usually after the first consonant [words that seem to begin with vowels actually have an unwritten glottal stop for the first consonant]:

-in--	binakae
-in--	inumok
-um--	umadto
-um--	tumindog

[red] (3) REDUPLICATIONS are the repetition of the first part of the root word. Aklanon has two types of reduplication--repetition of the first consonant and the first vowel of the root word [C_1V_1] which is then infixed into the root word, as in:

huya'	makahuhuya'
bakae	mababakae
buót	kabubut-on
punó'	napupunó'

or the infixation of some consonant (usually the fricative "e" or a nasal) and the repetition of the first vowel of the root word [ɡ́V_1 or NV_1] which is then infixed into the root word, as in:

silak	tigsililák
tanóm	tigtaeanom
saka'	nagasaeaka'
isda'	mangingisda'
uma(h)	mangunguma(h)
bulig	mamumulig
tahi'	mananahi'

[sfx] (4) SUFFIXES are put after the root word, as in:

símba(h)	simbahan
tínda(h)	tindahan
ádto	adtunan
lípay	malipayon
táwo(h)	tawohon
sueát	sueati
bakáe	bakea
daeá(h)	daehon

When we go about the business of using root words in speech, we find them growing with regard to both meaning and function. A root word and all of its subsequent possibilities of affixation are what go into the making up of a word's total range, or, more accurately, WORD RANGE. The word range of any given root is the root word itself and all of its derivations. One of the most productive roots in Aklanon is that of tawo(h) which indeed has a large word range:

FORM	PART OF SPEECH	MEANING
tawo(h)	noun	person
tinawo	noun	personnel
katawohan	noun	humanity; human race
kinatawohan	noun	birthday
isigkatawo	noun	fellow man
pagkatawo	noun	character; reputation
tawo-tawo	noun	puppet
tawohon	adjective	inhabited; enchanted
natawo	verb (ST2)	born
nagapakatawo	verb (CV)	[be] in birth throes
natawohan	verb (RC3)	[be] born in/at

Sometimes when we go from a simple root to various members of its word range there is a basic change in sound: a vowel may be dropped or changed, consonants may be switched around or changed. Such changes will be described and discussed in a later section (see Unit VII, "THE CASE OF THE MISSING LINKS").

For a native speaker, the problem of finding a root word is simplified in that he can derive it from the sense of the longer form and his own personal experience with the dialect. For a foreign learner, understanding the problems of the sound changes as discussed in Unit VII will be crucial.

V. AN OUTLINE OF AKLANON'S SIX BASIC GRAMMATICAL FUNCTIONS

1. THE TOPIC (OR FOCAL POINT) of Aklanon sentences is that element of the sentence which the speaker is talking about, emphasizing, or which he considers the most important. For example, in the following situation:

a man
buying bread for a child
at a store
with some money

an Aklanon speaker can discuss or emphasize any one of those elements [although it is unlikely that any single sentence would include all of the given elements of that situation]. Using, then, the topic marker ro [which is only for common nouns] a sentence could be begun:

Ro eaeaki...	(The man...)
Ro nagabakae...	(The one buying...)
Ro tinapay...	(The bread...)
Ro ungâ'...	(The child...)
Ro baraka...	(The store...)
Ro kwarta...	(The money...)

depending on what one would want to talk about in the sentence. Of course, depending on what one makes the topic of the sentence, the grammar will change, particularily the verb form; however, we will discuss that later in Section 6 under VERB CENTERS AND FOCUS. For the present, we only need note that the Aklanon sentence usually has a particular topic position and/or topic function.

There are, however, four possible forms for the Aklanon topics, depending on whether the topic is:

1,1. A COMMON NOUN, which is then marked by ro / do.

[Tm] Ro eaki nagbakáe it tinapay. / The man bought bread.
Ro ungá' ginbakeán it dulsi ni Lolo. / Grandpa bought candy for the child.
Mataas ro kahoy. / The tree is tall.
Mahâe ro motór. / The motorbike is expensive.

1,2. THE NAME OF A PERSON OR A PET, which is then marked by si [singular] or sanday / say [plural].

[Tm] Nagbakáe si Maria it dulsi. / Mary bought [some] candy.
Nag-ulí sanday Juan. / John (and his companions) went home.
Maaeam sanday Carlos ag Pedro. / Carl and Peter are smart.

1,3. A PRONOUN, which then would be any TOPIC PRONOUN FORM: akó, ikáw, imâw, kamí, kitá, kamó, sánda.

[T/pro] Mahâe imâw nanda. / He is dear to them.
Ginbakeán kamó it regalo? / Was a gift bought for you?
Makanta anay akó. / First I will sing.

1,4. A DEMONSTRATIVE, which then would be any TOPIC DEMONSTRATIVE FORM: ráya, rúyon, ranhá', rató.

[T/dem] Nano ruyon? / What is that?
Sin-o rató? / Who was that?
Pilá raya? / How much is this?

2. THE PREDICATE of Aklanon sentences is that element of the sentence which the speaker is giving as "news" or details about what the topic is or is doing. The predicate could be an adjective [G. 169-180], as in:

[adj] Dimot si Antonio. / Anthony is miserly.
Bata' pa ako. / I am still young.
Tawohon kuno ro kahoy ngara. / This tree is said to be inhabited.
Makadueuyog ro tukar. / The music was soperific.
Matambok sanday Agnes. / Agnes (and the others) are fat.

or a verb [G. 55-98], as in:

[RV] Nagaagto ako sa Manila'. / I'm going to Manila.
Gin-inóm baeá nimo ro bueóng? / Did you really drink the medicine?

which we shall discuss in more detail in Section 6.

3. THE ASSOCIATE is a technical term used to describe several types of constructions, namely:
(a) constructions showing possession or ownership:

[poss] Akong ayam rondaya. / This is my dog.
Mabahóe ro bintana' ku baeáy. / The window of the house is large.

(b) constructions describing the doer of an action in sentences or clauses where the doer is not the topic [that is, stressed or emphasized]:

[A/] Ro tinapay ginbakáe ku eaeaki. / The man bought the bread.
Inangkit ro ayam ku kuring. / The dog was bitten by the cat.

(c) constructions describing the instrument of an action in sentences or clauses where the instrument is not the topic:

Pinatáy ro sawá it bunáe. / The snake was killed with a whip.
Ginbakean ro eapsag it gatas ku kwartang nabilin ni Nanay. / Milk was bought for the baby with the money that Momma left behind.

English has equivalents for the possessive use of the associate, but there is no exact or idiomatic equivalent which captures the exact sense of the Aklanon idiom with unemphasized actors or instruments.

Just as for the topic position, there are four possible forms for Aklanon associates, depending on whether the associate is:

3,1. A COMMON NOUN, which is then marked by ku [when specific, meaning "the"] or it [when general, meaning "a/an"].

[Am] Binaligya' ku meyor ro baeay. / The house was sold by the mayor.
Naduea' ro kwarta ku ungá'. / The child's money was lost.

3, 2. THE NAME OF A PERSON OR A PET, which is then marked by ni [singular] or nanday / nay [plural].

[Am] May mansa ro eambong ni Ana. / Anne's dress has a stain.
Kinaon nanday Julio ro mga eangka'. / Julius (and his friends) ate up the jackfruits.
Mauli' kamí ni Paúl. / Paul and I will go home.

There is an alternate associate form which comes before (rather than after) the noun or verb it goes with: ay [singular] or anday [plural]

[Am] May mansa ro ay Ana nga eambong. / Anne's dress has a stain.
Anday Julio nga kinaon ro mga eangka'. / Julius (and his friends) ate up the jackfruits.

3, 3. A PRONOUN, which then would be any ASSOCIATE PRONOUN FORM: akon, imo, ana, amon, aton, inyo, anda, if coming before the noun or phrase it goes with.

[A/pro] Akong tiya ron. / That is my aunt.
Pila ro imong idad? / What [how much] is your age?
Ana dató? / Is that his?

or the alternate forms: nakon/ko, nimo/mo, nana/na, namon, naton, ninyo, nanda, if coming after the noun or phrase it goes with.

[A/pro] Ginbakáe nakon ro sueá'. / I bought the food.
Rató ro asawa mo? / Is that your wife?
Kan-on ta ro dulsi. / Let's [you and I] eat the candy.

3, 4. A DEMONSTRATIVE, which then would have the standard ku marker along with the topic forms: kuraya, kuruyon, kuranhá', kurató.

[A/dem] Ginbakáe ro eambong kurayang ungá'. / This child bought the shirt.

When the demonstratives are used adjectivally, to modify nouns, there is another set: ngará, ngarón, nganhá', ngató.

[A/dec] Anyo ro baeay ngara? / Whose house is this?
Ginasto eagi nakon ro kwarta ngato. / I spent that money right away.

4. THE OBJECT refers to the direct object or goal of an action when not emphasized by the speaker or made the topic of a sentence. Aklanon exhibits a curious phenomenon in that there are no distinct object markers or forms for persons or pronouns, only for common nouns. The object marker for a COMMON NOUN is it.

[O/] Nagbakáe si David it singsing. / David bought a ring.
[Om] Owá' akó it kwarta. / I don't have any money.

Sometimes, the associate marker ku can double for the object marker, particularily with the meaning or sense of a specific object ("the..."):

[Am] Nagbakáe imâw ku singsing. / He bought the ring.
Nakainóm ka ku gatas ngarón? / Have you drunk that milk?

As mentioned, persons and pronouns cannot be made the direct receivers of an action; instead of using an object form, an indirect object form [REFERENT] is used.

The object marker also has an ADVERBIAL USE by joining what would normally be an adjective to the verb, as in the following examples:

[adv] Kaon it mayád. / Eat well.
Kanta it mabaskog. / Sing loudly.
Nagahambae imaw it mabakas. / He speaks quickly.

The object marker also has a PARENTHETICAL USE, particularily with the basic pronoun forms [G. 168]:

[par] Indi' tang magpati. / I won't believe it.
Kahinay ta kimo. / You are so slow.

5. THE REFERENT is a technical term used to describe any of several types of constructions, namely:

(a) constructions showing the indirect object of an action [person to whom something is done]:

[R/] Gintaó nana kimo ro regalo? / Did he give you the gift?
May akon nga ginahambae sa mga ungá'. / I have something to say to the children.
Ginpadaeá ron sa akong ginikanan. / That was sent to my parents.

(b) constructions showing the beneficiary of an action [person for whom something is done]:

[ben] Para sa makasasaea' ro pagkonfesár. / Confession is for sinners.
Nagbakáe imáw it dulsi para sa anang ungá'. / He bought candy for his child.

(c) constructions showing the place or location of an action:

[loc] Naglarga sanda sa Manila'. / They left for Manila.
Mauli' imáw sa Kalibo. / He will return to Kalibo.
Inaywan don nakon sa baeáy. / I left that at home.

The nearest equivalent to the Aklanon Referent in English is a good part of the prepositional system ("at, on, by, in, to, for"). However, where the English prepositions are exact, the Visayan referent is vague. For example, "at home, in the house, to the house, into the house" would all be "sa baeáy" in Aklanon.

As with the topic and associate, there are four possible forms for the Aklanon referents, depending on whether the referent is:

5,1. A COMMON NOUN, which is then marked by sa.

[Rm] Ginbakáe ko ra sa tindahan. / I bought this at the market.
Nakahambae eon akó sa maestra. / I already spoke to the teacher.
Daeha ron para sa manghod mo. / Carry that for your younger brother.

5,2. THE NAME OF A PERSON OR A PET, which is then marked by kay [singular] or kanday [plural].

Paadtuna imáw kay Filipe. / Have him go to [see] Philip.

[Rm] Itaó mo ro tueun-an kay Feli. / Give the book to Fely.
Rayang eukás hay para kanday Fe. / This gift is for Fay and the others.

5,3. A PRONOUN, which then would be any REFERENT PRONOUN FORM: kakon, kimo, kana, kamon, katon, kinyo, kanda.

[R/pro] Naila' ka kana? / Do you like her?
Una' kanda ro kwarta. / The money is [there] with them.
Obraha ron para kamon. / Do that for us.
Itaó eagi kakon ro kwarta. / Give me the money immediately.

5,4. A DEMONSTRATIVE, which then would be a REFERENT DEMONSTRATIVE FORM if and only if it shows the goal or object of the action. The forms for this slot are: kará, karón, kaná', kató. [G.163]

[R/dem] Akó nag-obra kató. / I made that.
Ikáw ro nakasueát kará? / Were you the one that wrote this?
Taw-i man imáw karón. / Give him that.

However, if a location or place is intended or related, the demonstrative forms are no longer possible in this position. Instead, one of the LOCATIVE DEICTICS must be used: riya, runa', rinhá', ritó. [G.185-86]

[loc] Maeamíg kunó ritó sa America. / They say that it's cold over [dec] there in America.
Hin-uno pa imáw maabót diya? / When will it be that he arrives here?
Rinhá' eon kimo ro regalo? / Is the gift already there with you?

The referent sa also has two other important uses:

5,5. Sa can be used with the names of days or months or with periods of time to denote FUTURE TIME:

sa Miyerkoles / on Wednesday
sa Hulyo / in July
sa daywa pang oras / in two more hours

5,6. Sa is also used with the associate marker ku or the object marker it to make up phrases called SPATIAL RELATORS:

sa ibabaw it lamesa / on top of the table
sa pihak it bukid / on the other side of the mountain
sa tabók it kalye / across the street

6. VERBAL CENTERS are probably the most important aspect of Aklanon grammar. For one reason, because Aklanon verbs are so very different from those of English or any Western language. For another, because verbs are the most important part of any utterance. One cannot speak long in sentences which have no verbs. Verbs are present--really or implied--in almost every utterance.

Aklanon verbs are idiomatically quite different from those of English. In English we are used to thinking of three attributes in verbs:

(1) TENSE -- which relates verbs to the actual time when they happen:

present: "I buy"
past: "I bought"
future: "I will buy"

(2) MODE -- which grammar teachers usually discussed under "helping verbs" such as "might, can, could, should" and so on.

(3) VOICE -- which grammar teachers usually divide into:

active: "I bought the bread."
passive: "The bread was bought by me."

In Aklanon, however, one must get used to thinking of different attributes in verbs:

(1) ASPECT -- which tells whether an action has begun or not, or whether it got finished or not, and not always with some clear division into present, past or future.

(2) MODE -- which tells whether an action is actual or merely possible:

actual: "I build houses." [ga]
possible: "I can build houses." [ka]

or whether an action is intentional, accidental or obligatory:

intentional: "I tore up the paper."
accidental: "The paper [accidentally] got torn."
obligatory: "Tear up the paper." [command form]

(3) FOCUS -- which is an idiom of the language whereby one can talk about or stress any basic sentence element: associate, object, actor, or referent.

Let us take up a point by point discussion of each of these verbal elements.

A. ASPECT IN AKLANON is not intended to tell time, but rather to indicate the degree to which an action is completed. It is often coincidental that Visayan aspect forms seem to match English tense forms, though there are also some striking differences. For example, nag- shows that an action was begun and completed; in both logic and meaning it parallels the simple English past tense: nagbakae / bought. However, the naga- form denotes that an action was begun but was not completed. Sometimes it parallels the English present progressive or simple present tense: nagabakae / is buying, buys; but it can also parallel the English past progressive tense, as in:

> Pag-abót nana sa tindahan, nagabakáe akó it tinapay. / When he arrived at the market, I was buying bread.

It could also be used to signify a continuing action in future time, as in:

> Makahuhuya' kon umabót imáw ag nagakaon kamí. / It would be so embarrassing if he were to arrive and we would be eating.

Because of these differences, it is necessary to discuss the Aklanon forms one by one and give all their connotations and denotations in English. Please bear with us if we use unfamiliar terminology [like "imperfective" or "conditioned"] because the forms themselves are unfamiliar and represent brand new elements of grammar, not at all taken in English grammars. It is hoped that the examples will clarify what the technical jargon represents.

A, 1. THE IMPERFECTIVE [naga---, gina---] shows that an action has begun but that it is not yet completed. The actual time of the action is not clear in the verb itself, since it usually depends on other time indicators in the clause or sentence. If no other time indicator occurs, then the imperfective can be taken to describe an action in the present. The imperfective has three connotations in English:

A1, 1. a PRESENT or CURRENT ACTION--

Nagapanindahán sanda makarón. / They are marketing now.
NagapaNabas akó. / I am on my way to Nabas.
Nagakaon pa sanda. / They are still eating.

A1, . a HABITUAL ACTION--

Nagapangisda' kamo adlaw-adlaw? / Do you fish every day?
Permi ako nagakaon it humay. / I always eat rice.

A1, 3. a CONTINUING OR PROGRESSIVE ACTION in the past or future time:

Pag-abót nana, nagaeabá kamí sa subá'. / When he arrived, we were washing at the river. [progressive action in past]
Manami' kon pagsueód nana nagakanta eon kitá. / It would be nice if when he comes in we will already be singing. [continuing future action]

A, 2. THE PERFECTIVE [nag---, gin---] shows that an action has begun, and that it is completed. It is parallel to the simple past tense of English:

Nagsimba kamí kahapon. / We went to church yesterday.
Ginbaligya' nanda ro andang baeáy. / They sold their house.

Very often the Aptative prefixes [naka---, kina---, na---] are used with the particle eon to show that an action is already finished or recently finished (see B2, 3).

A, 3. THE FUTURE [maga---, ma---, i---, ---on, ---an] shows that an action has not yet begun, but that it is expected to begin. It has three connotations in English:

A3, 1. a FUTURE OR ANTICIPATED ACTION--

Mapalibanaw akó. / I will wash up.
Maulí' ka? / Will you go home?
Ibaligya' pa nimo ra? / Will you still sell this?

A3, 2. a LIMITED OR DETERMINED ACTION following such verb determiners or particles as:

bago / before, prior to [V. det] basi' / maybe, perhaps basta' / provided that, so long as kon / if; when, whenever

The connotations will depend then on the particle used:

Basi' mahueog ka. / You might fall.
Basta' maapas kamó, mauna lang kami. / So long as you will come later, we'll just go ahead.
Pwede nakon mabilin ro akong dinaeá? / May I leave my things here?

A3, 3. POLITE COMMANDS OR EXHORTATIONS--

Mos, matan-aw kitá it sine. / Come on, let's go see a movie.
Limpyohán mo anay ro aparadór. / First clean out the cabinet.
Itaó mo anay kakon don. / Please give that to me.

A, 4. THE DEPENDENT FORM of the verb is roughly equivalent to the English infinitive. It follows certain particles, such as:

[V. det]
mayad / it would be good to...
dapat / should; it would be best to...
naila' / like to...; want to...
naanad / used to...; accustomed to...
kinahangean / must; is necessary to...

Naila' akó mag-adto sa Amerika. / I would like to go to America.
Dapat nga ikáw magkangay kana. / You should invite him.
Kinahangean nga ako mag-obra kara. / I must do this.
Naanad eon ako magsigarilyo. / I'm already used to smoking.

These four previously discussed aspects refer to positive statements, that is, statements of fact that do not have any negative particles in them. Whenever a negative gets into an Aklanon sentence, the grammar changes considerably, particularily in the object focuses. It is important to look at the three different types of negative or conditioned aspects used with indí' and owá'.

A, 5. THE PRESENT CONDITIONED OR NEGATIVE FORM [ga---, gi---#] is used when certain question particles [such as siin, mauno] or the negative owa' occur in the clause or sentence and denote present time or habitual action:

Owá' kami gabaligya' itlog adlaw-adlaw. / We don't sell eggs every day.
Owá' nakon gibakeá ro singsing, ginatan-aw eang. / I'm not buying the ring, I'm just looking at it.
Siin nimo gieabhi ro umog. / Where do you wash the dirty laundry.

A, 6. THE PAST CONDITIONED OR NEGATIVE FORM [mag---, pag---#] is used when certain question particles or the negative owa' occur in the sentence and denote past time:

Owá' akó mag-adto kahapon. / I didn't go yesterday.
Owá' ron nakon paghambaeá. / I didn't say that.
Siin nana igbutang ro kwarta? / Where did he put the money?

A, 7. THE FUTURE CONDITIONED OR NEGATIVE FORM [mag---, pag---#] is used when certain question particles or the negative ind[illegible] occur in the clause and denote future time:

Indí' akó magpati. / I won't believe [that].
Basi' anang igbaligya' ro baeay. / He might sell the house.

Indi' nana pagbakeón ro baeoe. / He won't buy the salted fish.

A, 8. There is a final verb form, often described as a PARTICIPLE [pag---] which is a common Visayan idiom. It has two important uses:

A8, 1. It can show past time or completed action in dependent clauses:

Pag-abót ni Tatay, mapanaw dayon kitá. / When Daddy comes, then we'll leave.
Pagkakaon namon, umabót ro bisita. / When we had finished eating the visitor arrived.

A8, 2. It is also commonly used to make gerunds or verbal nouns:

pagbasa	reading
pagsueat	writing
paghambae	speaking
pagkaon	food, edibles

B. MODE is the second basic attribute of Aklanon verbs. Whereas mode is usually shown in English by the "helping verbs" [can, should, shall, will, may] Visayan verbs have mode right in the very affixes attached to the root word. There are four basic modes in Aklanon.

B, 1. THE SIMPLE MODE states the simple fact or occurrence of an action, whether it occurred or did not occur. All the nine aspects just discussed are in the simple mode. Note the various aspect prefixes in different focuses, and how the g- occurs to show the simple mode:

imperfective	naga---	gina---
perfective	nag---	gin---
future	maga---	paga---
dependent/cond.	mag---	pag---#

B, 2. THE ABILITY OR APTATIVE MODE states the possibility of an action, much like the "can" or "could" helping verbs of English. Instead of having some nine different aspect forms, the ability mode only has two basic forms, based on the prefix]ka--- [although the other focuses can evidence up to four, based on]ha---]:

naka---	(could), expressing past time [REAL]
maka---	(can), expressing present or future time [UNREAL]

The English translations of "could" or "can" do not always apply to these forms since they have more connotations than those forms of English. Some of the ideas that can be expressed with the ability mode in Aklanon are:

B2, 1. It can express the idea of the English modals "can" or "could" in the sense of physically being capable or able of doing something:

Makaeangoy ka? / Can you swim?
Owá' imáw naka iaea karón tungód nga mabug-at. / He couldn't carry that since it was [too] heavy.
Binaríl imáw sa sikí, ogaling makatikáng eon man imáw. / He was shot in the leg, however now he can walk again.

B2, 2. It can express the meaning "have an opportunity to do" or "succeed in doing":

Nakapasár akó sa iksamin. / I succeeded in passing the exam.
Makatuón pa akó ay may eskolarsip. / I still have an opportunity to study since I have a scholarship.

B2, 3. The prefix naka--- is quite often used with the particle eon to denote recent perfectivity as expressed by the English helping verbs "have" or "has":

Nakakita' eon kamó it padrino? / Have you already found a sponsor?
Nakakaon eon sanda? / Have they eaten yet?
Nakaadto ka eon sa Bagyo? / Have you already gone to Baguio?

B2, 4. The aptative can also express some degree of accidentality, either unintentional or coincidental:

Anó ro nakamansa ku eambong ko? / What [accidentally] stained my shirt?
Basi' makasubeang kamó it mueto sa daean. / You might [coincidentally] meet a ghost on the road.
Nakasakáy akó sa dyip nga indí' paadto sa Tangaean. / I [accidentally] got on a jeep that wasn't bound for Tangalan.

B, 3. THE HAPPENSTANCE MODE [with the prefix hi---] states than an action takes place by happenstance or chance:

Basi' hiadto ka? / Might you get a chance to go?
Siín hidadakpi ro isda' kundí' sa ba-ba'? / Where else might one catch a fish but by the mouth? [Aklanon maxim]
Maeaká' hikit-an, maeumó lilipatán. / Seldom seen, easily forgotten.

B, 4. THE IMPERATIVE OR COMMAND MODE expresses a command or an order. As in English, the true command form does not express the subject "you". Usually only the verb and the object or indirect object are expressed. However, the imperative mode brings us ahead in our discussion since an understanding of FOCUS is essential. Briefly put, there are four types of command forms depending on the subject or topic of the sentence. If one is talking about: the actor, the instrument, the goal or object, or the referent, then one of four imperative forms must be chosen.

B4, 1. FOCUS ON THE ACTOR--

Bakáe it tinapay. / Buy some bread.
Paghipos anay kamo. / Please be quiet.

B4, 2. FOCUS ON THE INSTRUMENT or OBJECT FOCUS #2--

Ibakáe ro kwartang una' sa lamesa. / Buy [it] with the money on the table. [focus on instrument]
Butangán don sa aparadór. / Put that in the cabinet. [focus on object]

B4, 3. FOCUS ON THE DIRECT OBJECT or OBJECT FOCUS #1--

Daeha ron. / Bring that.

B4, 4. FOCUS ON THE REFERENT or OBJECT FOCUS #3--

Bakeí akó it saewae. / Buy me [a pair of] trousers. [referent]
Obrahí akó it singsing. / Make a ring for me. [referent]
Eabhi ro eambong. / Wash the dress. [focus on object]
Bayari ring utang. / Pay your debt. [focus on object]

C. GENERAL EXPLANATION OF FOCUS.

When things happen in the world, they do not happen alone. They are relative to many factors. Any action is not merely related to itself in terms of the vocabulary used to describe it. For example, kaon or eat can never happen by itself. The process of eating happens:

- at a certain TIME: perhaps in the morning (then we have the special term "breakfast" or "pamahaw" to describe it), at noontime ("lunch" or "ilabas"), or in the evening ("supper" or "ihapon"). Because all actions happen in time something in every sentence must indicate time. We have seen how Aklanon ASPECT can handle time situations to some degree, particularly with the help of other time words.
- in a certain PLACE OR LOCATION: perhaps we eat in the dining room or the kitchen, at a picnic, or at the beach. The place of an action is not always said, but it is always understood.
- with a definite ACTOR: perhaps you or I am eating, perhaps Jose or Maria, or maybe a man or a child or a kitten. We have seen how Aklanon has pronouns, special markers for common nouns or the names of persons or pets.
- with a definite OBJECT: perhaps rice, meat, vegetables, bread or candy.
- with some sort of INSTRUMENT: one eats with one's hands, or else with a spoon or fork; we also use plates and bowls.

Still other verbs have other SITUATIONAL DETAILS, expressed or implied, such as indirect objects, beneficiaries, causes, agents, causers and so on.

In Aklanon, the speaker may discuss any one of the situational details he wishes to. The idiom of the dialect then forces him to choose any one of four basic focuses: he must make the situational detail he so chooses the topic of the sentence--then the verb and all the other sentence elements must agree with it. This is precisely the whole idea of FOCUS. Focus is an agreement relationship which consists of a verb form and related function-marked phrases that reveal the emphasis patterns of the speaker. It is an agreement relationship because the entire construction is bound together in grammatical relationship to itself, independent of any other forms outside of the construction, and the various elements of the construction are tightly tied together. The elements of the VERBAL CENTER in Aklanon are universally:

1. a topic phrase--which could be any situational role;
2. a verb--with its proper focus affixes depending on the situational role represented in the topic phrase;
3. other related associate, object or referent phrases marked according to the situational roles they represent, giving one or more of the situational details.

C,1. THE ACTOR FOCUS stresses or makes the actor or doer of the action the focal point of the sentence. It is most frequently used:

in questions, except those about one and what he is doing:

Siín ka gaagto? / Where are you going?
Ham-an nag-intra ka sa Piyskor? / Why did you join the Peace Corps?
Kan-o ka mag-abót? / When did you arrive?
Hin-uno sanda maulí'? / When will they return?

in almost all answers or statements about oneself or another, particularly about what one is doing:

Nagabasa imáw. / He is reading.
Nakaobra eon akó ku repórt. / I already did the report.
Manogsimba sanda. / They plan to go to church.

or generally in sentences where the verb and the doer are the point of emphasis:

Kanta it mabaskog. / Sing loudly.
Kaon it mayád. / Eat well.
Makaeangoy ka? / Can you swim?
Antigo ka magtukár it piano? / Do you know how to play the piano?

C,2. THE OBJECT FOCUS #1 is used:

to stress the direct object of those verbs belonging to the first class [see next unit]:

Ginabakáe ko ro baboy. / I am buying the pig.
Bue-on ko ra. / I'll take this.

whenever the direct object or goal of the verb (RV1) is a definite or explicit thing:

Gineaha' nana ro karne. / He cooked the meat.
Daeha ron. / Bring that.

in questions about what one is doing, particularly when ano represents the direct object and the verb root is RV1:

Anó ro imong ginabasa? / What are you reading?
Anó ring ginausoy? / What are you looking for?
Anó ring bue-on? / What will you take?

in commands using RV1 roots where the direct object is the most sensible item to stress or talk about:

Pritoha ro karne. / Fry the meat.
Daeha ron kay Nanay. / Bring that to Momma.
Hueatá akó. / Wait for me.

in questions about who, particularily when sin-o represents the direct object and the verb root is RV1:

Sin-o ring ginausoy? / Whom are you looking for?
Sin-o ro andang hueatón? / Whom will they wait for?

in connected discourse when the object of the action is already stated or known:

> Kato anay nakakita' ako it sambatong pispis, binaril ko, > Linaha' ko, kinaon ko. / Once upon a time I saw a bird; I > shot it, cooked it, and ate it.
>
> Bue-a anay ro tueun-an sa lamesa. Daehon mo kay Rene, > ay basahon kuno nana. / Please get the book on the table > and bring it to Rene since he said he will read it.

Altogether, some six different uses for the OBJECT FOCUS have been outlined. These uses do not only apply to Object Focus #1, but to any verb which takes an object. However, not all verbs that have direct objects or goals can be conjugated according to the forms for Object Focus #1. Some verbs stressing their goals must follow the conjugation of Object Focus #2 or #3, depending on the idiom of the dialect. Note this in the next two explanations (C, 3 and C, 4), and also in the next unit under the explanation of Regular verbs.

C, 3. THE INSTRUMENT FOCUS or OBJECT FOCUS #2 is used idiomatically to stress the direct object of those verbs belonging to RV2 [the second verb class]. Hence, the uses parallel those outlined just previously under Object Focus #1:

> Ginabaligya' ko ro baboy. / I am selling the pig.
> Itago' ko ra. / I'll put this away.
> Ibutáng na ron sa lamesa. / He will put that on the table.
> Anó ring ginahambae? / What are you saying?
> Anó ring itaó? / What will you give?
> Hatdán imáw sa baeáy. / Accompany him home.
> Sugirán do balita'. / Tell the news.
> Sin-o ro ginaeubong? / Who is being buried?

The same forms of this focus are used to show the INSTRUMENTS OF AN ACTION:

> Ro kwarta ibakáe ko it saging. / I'll use the money to buy bananas.
> Isueát mo ro lapis ngará. / Write with this pencil.
> Ro anwang ikaarado sa eanas. / This carabao can be used for > plowing the field.
> Ieabá mo ro sabón nga "Tide". / Use the Tide soap for laundering.

C, 4. THE REFERENT FOCUS or OBJECT FOCUS #3 is used idiomatically to stress the direct object of those verbs belonging to RV3 [the third verb class] and also RV4 [the fourth verb class]. The uses parallel those outlined previously under Object Focus #1:

> Ginabantayán ko ro kwarta. / I am watching the money.
> Bisitahi kamí permi. / Always visit us.
> Anó ring ginabayaran? / What are you paying for?
> Sin-o raa ginkaila-an? / Whom did he court?

The same forms of this focus are used to show the REFERENTS OF AN ACTION, particularly the indirect objects, the beneficiaries, or the locations:

> Obrahi akó it repórt. / Make a report for me.
> Partihi imaw ku irensya. / Share the inheritance with him.
> Manila ro andang ginapaeangpan. / Manila is where they are headed.

VI. THE BASIC PARTS OF SPEECH IN AKLANON can be outlined as verbs, nouns, adjectives, adverbs, function markers and particles. A detailed outline of them relating to the abbreviations used in this dictionary would be useful.

A. REGULAR VERBS [G. 90–92] However, a revised treatment—

RV1 A. 1, 1. Verbs of Class 1 are transitive; when taking a direct object unemphasized it or ku are used, emphasized with OF#1; they can show instruments with ku or IF; referents are shown with sa or RF.
Example roots: bakáe, daeá(h), pirito(h), buóe, hueát, inóm.
Basic forms:
FUTURE: bakeon, daehon, piritohon, bue-on, hueaton, imnon
COMMAND: bakea, daeha, piritoha, bue-a, hueatá, imna
See Chart for Object Focus #1 on page 22.

RV2 A. 1, 2. Verbs of Class 2 are transitive; when taking a direct object unemphasized ku is usually used, emphasized with OF#2; they can show instruments with ku or IF; referents are shown with sa or RF.
Example roots: balígya', eubóng, butáng, hatód, pilák, súgid.
Basic forms:
FUTURE: ibalígya', ieubóng, ibutáng, ihatód, ipilák, isúgid.
COMMAND: baligya-án, eúbngan, butangán, hátdan, etc.

RV3 A. 1, 3. Verbs of Class 3 are transitive; they may show a direct object with either it or sa, emphasized with OF#3; sometimes instruments can be shown with ku or IF; referents are shown with sa or RF. Example roots: eabá(h), húgas, buyót, bántay, úpak.
Basic forms:
FUTURE: eábhan, hugásan, búytan, bantayán, upákan
COMMAND: eábhi, hugási, búyti, bantayí, upáki

RV4 A. 1, 4. Verbs of Class 4 are also transitive, but they only show a direct object with sa, emphasized with OF#3. They do not take instruments generally; referents are shown with sa or RF.
Example roots: língkod, eubóg, hibayág, haró', sakáy
Basic forms:
FUTURE: lingkorán, eúgban, hibáygan, haro-án, sákyan
COMMAND: lingkorí, eúgbi, hibáygi, haro-í, sákyi

RV5 A. 1, 5. Verbs of Class 5 are basically transitive, but the direct object is generally unstated and bound up with the meaning of the verb. The AF is generally the only conjugation, though sometimes RF can be used to show locations or other referents, sa when unemphasized.
Example roots: bong, béysbol, mádyong, sigarílyo, kánta(h), sáot.
Many distributive verbs fit into this verb class: pangísda', pangahoy, pangamúyo', pangamóti, pamutóng, etc.

RV6 A.1,6. Verbs of Class 6 are intransitive verbs of motion (or sometimes state of being) and usually do not express any location. The AF is generally the only conjugation used, though sometimes instruments or referents occur in or out of focus constructions.
Example roots: aringking, alagwa, daeagan, baktas, panaw.

RV7 A.1,7. Verbs of Class 7 are inanimate and intransitive. They are set apart grammatically from other verb classes because the pronoun forms and the si / sanday forms can never be used with these verbs. AF is generally used; the RF or sa phrases show various locations or referents. These verbs are often used in causative]pa- constructions (CV) to show a person's causing of such an inanimate action.
Example roots: ueán, bukáe, ilóg, asáw-asáw, daeúgdug, ígpat.

RV8 A.1,8. Verbs of Class 8 are intransitive and always have plural doers. They are grammatically set apart from other verb classes because they can never be used with any singular actor or doer; hence the singular pronouns [ako, ikaw, imaw] and the si marker can never be used with these verbs--they must always describe the action of two or more subjects.
Example roots: ímaw, anggisód, sugilánon, saeabtánan, kasundó'.

RV9 A.1,9. Verbs of Class 9 are intransitive verbs of motion which contain the location or place of the action or motion within the root. Generally they are made up of the]pa- idiomatic motion prefix. AF only.
Example roots: paNábas, paKalíbo, paeapít, paeayó', tabulí'.

A. CAUSATIVE VERBS [G. 99-105]

CV A.2,0. Any verb root can be made into a causative by the simple addition of the]pa- postpositive prefix, signifying that instead of doing an action, a person has the action done by someone else. Instead of a direct actor, then, there is a causer. Three idiomatic English equivalents are: "let, have, make" with psychological overtones. Certain grammatical changes take place, making the causatives much easier to handle than the Regular Verbs. Instead of nine conjugations, there is only one. AF signifies the causer, IF the object or instrument, OF the agent, and RF any referents.
Sometimes causatives are not predictable in their English translations because English has a separate verb root:

kaon / eat	pakaon / feed
sayod / know	pasayod / notify
kita' / see, find	pakita' / demonstrate, show
daeá(h) / bring	padaeá(h) / send dumdum / think	padumdum / remind
hueam / borrow	pahueam / lend
tam-is / sweet	patam-is / sweeten

A. DISTRIBUTIVE VERBS [G. 106–08]

DV A. 3, 0. Most verb roots can be made into a distributive by the simple addition of the]pang- prepositive prefix (with accompanying consonant reduction). The distributive denotes that in some way or another the action or the object of the action is distributed or spread out in time or in quantity, or that the action involves a process of several activities or actions:

asawa	pangasawa / go through the process of getting married (courtship and all)
tinda(h)	panindahan / go marketing
simba(h)	panimba(h) / worship
taó	panaó / give several things
kuto	panghingutó / take lice from hair
kahoy	pangahóy / gather wood
hueog	panghueog / drop several things
bakáe	pamakáe / go shopping; buy many things
kita'	pangita' / earn a living

A. STATIVE VERBS [G. 120–29] However, a revised treatment--

ST1 A. 4, 1. Stative verbs of Class 1 describe most internal feelings and emotions. They are conjugated according to the forms of Object Focus #1 in all aspects, however they have Actor Focus meaning. Example roots: gutóm, duyóg, gáoy, úhaw, ásla(h), hídlaw.

ST2 A. 4, 2. Stative verbs of Class 2 describe internal feelings, emotions, and physical conditions. They are only conjugated according to the forms of the Aptative and Happenstance of Object Focus #1, in effect only having the prefixes: na, ma, hi, ha. Example roots: ákig, hádlok, íla', mádla', matáy, táwo, túeog.

ST3 A. 4, 3. Stative verbs of Class 3 are generally intransitive and inanimate and describe accidental happenings. They only have the conjugation of the Aptative and Happenstance of Object Focus #1. Example roots: buká', gísi', humán, sámad, wasák, pusá'

ST4 A. 4, 4. Stative verbs of this class describe physical afflictions to/of the human body. They generally have Object Focus #1 forms but with object focus or passive meanings. They are considered stative verbs because the roots are not generally conjugated with AF forms. Example roots: búlag, púling, sakít, nína(h), patáy, kíta', síp-on.

ST5 A. 4, 5. Stative verbs of Class 5 describe internal reactions or psychological states derived from external phenomena. Whenever a person is made to think of or feel the effect of some experience, any verb root can be conjugated according to this form, as well as many noun and adjective roots. The idiom is very, very common in Aklanon; yet idiomatic English equivalents are hard to find or translate. Th conjugation of Class 5 is identical to that of Referent Focus [see page 22]. Some examples of the use of these idioms are:

Nabastosan ako ku imong ginhambae. / I was grossed out by what you said.
Natam-isan ako ku dulsi. / I found the candy extremely sweet.
Naeayo-an ako ku biyahi. / I felt the distance of the journey.
Naduea-an ako it kwarta. / I suffered the loss of some money.
Nawad-an sanda it unga'. / They suffered the loss of a child.

STQ A. 4, 6. Many verbs can have the]tag- prefix to describe a feeling of or for, or an urge to do something:

Natag-ihi' ako. / I feel like urinating.
Natagsaot sanda. / They feel like dancing.
Natandiho' imaw. / He has to move his bowels.

A. VERBS OF RELATIONSHIP [G. 111-12]

REL. v A. 5, 0. Many words describing a relationship can be prefixed with mag- or nag- :

Mag-amigo sanda. / They are friends.
Mag-igkampod kita. / We are cousins.
Nagkilaea eon kami. / We were already introduced.

These verbs have a plural form with the $-gV_1-$ infix describing the relationship of three or more:

Pila kamong magmaeanghod? / How many brothers and sisters do you have?
Magbaeata' sandang lima. / Those five are related.

A. VERBS OF RECIPROCALITY [G. 113]

REC. v A. 6, 0. Certain roots have the nakig-/makig- or nakipag-/makipag- prefixes to denote reciprocal or mutual action:

Gusto ko makipagkilaea kimo. / I would like to get acquainted with you.
Nakigsatsat imaw sa among sugilanon. / He joined us in our conversation.

B. MARKERS show and give function to words in sentences. They are the basic building blocks in constructing meaningful sentences. Markers are the particles that make a noun a noun in Aklanon, and they also make it stand for what it is meant to stand for: topic, associate, object or referent. [G. 51-52, 77ff, 87, 90ff, 102-03, 141-56, 164-68] [D. 10-14]

Tm B. 1, 0. The TOPIC MARKERS ro / do are used on common nouns to illustrate the topic or subject matter of a sentence; si / sanday are used with the names of persons or pets. For examples, see page 10.

Am B. 2, 0. The ASSOCIATE MARKERS are: ku for common nouns, and ni/nanday [postpositive] or ay/anday [prepositive] to illustrate the unemphasized actor, possessor, instrument or concomitant of an action. For examples see pages 11-12.

Om B. 3, 0. The OBJECT MARKER it is used on common nouns to illustrate an indefinite direct object of an action ["a" not "the"]. It is also used in parenthetical pronoun constructions, and to unite adverbs to verbs. For examples, see pages 12-13.

Rm B. 4, 0. The REFERENT MARKERS are: sa for common nouns, and kay/kanday for names of persons or pets to illustrate the indirect object, place, location, beneficiary or other referent of an action. For examples, see pages 13-14. Sa is also used in statements of future time and in phrases called spatial relators, see page 14.

Lm B. 5, 0. The LINKING MARKER nga [contracted to -ng at the end of words ending in a vowel, glottal stop or n] is used to unite adjectives to the nouns they modify. It is also used to stand for a relative in expanded clauses, equivalent to the English "that" or "which" or "who": [G. 156, 191]

mayád nga tawo / good person
limpyong kwarto / [a] clean room baeáy nga gin-obra nanda / house which they built si Jesús nga ungá' ni Maria / Jesus who was the child of Mary

Em B. 6, 0. The ENUMERATIVE MARKER ka is used after any number or question of quantity [pilá] and before the noun. It's presence is not obligatory, although it is often used: [G. 190]

daywáng ka ungá' / two children
pilá ka kilometros / how many kilometers

C. NOUNS AND SUBSTANTIVES

n C. 1, 0. COMMON NOUNS in Aklanon are of over forty-two sorts as described in the GRAMMAR [G. 133-40], grouped into 8 classes.

Pm C. 1, 1. PLURALITY is expressed in Aklanon by simply inserting the particle mangá [Abr: mga] between the marker and the noun itself: [G. 131]

pl mga isda' / fishes
mga tawo / people; persons mga kahoy / trees

pro C. 2, 0. PRONOUNS are of several classes, depending on their function. They are based on interpersonal orientation: speaker, speaker-listener, listener and other. [G. 157-60]

T/pro	C. 2, 1.	TOPIC PRONOUNS function in topic position in place of topic noun slots. Forms and examples are on page 10. [G. 157-58]
A/pro	C. 2, 2.	ASSOCIATE PRONOUNS function in either prepositive or post-positive associate position in place of associate noun slots. Forms and examples are on page 12. [G. 158-60]
R/pro	C. 2, 3.	REFERENT PRONOUNS function in referent position in place of referent noun slots. Forms and examples are given on page 14. [G. 160]
dem	C. 3, 0.	DEMONSTRATIVES are of several classes, depending on their function. They are pronoun forms based on the deictic adverbs: iya, una', inha', idto. [G. 161-63; 185-87]
T/dem	C. 3, 1.	TOPIC DEMONSTRATIVES function in topic position in place of topic noun slots. Forms and examples are on page 11. [G. 161]
A/dem	C. 3, 2.	ASSOCIATE DEMONSTRATIVES function in postpositive position. Forms and examples are on page 12. [G. 163]
A/dec	C. 3, 2*	ASSOCIATE DEICTICS function in postpositive position, acting as adjectives. Forms and examples are on page 11. [G. 162]
R/dem	C. 3, 3.	REFERENT DEMONSTRATIVES function in referent position in place of referent noun slots. Forms and examples are given on page 14. [G. 163]

D. ADJECTIVES

adj	D. 1, 0.	ADJECTIVES are of some twelve sorts [G. 170-72].
	D. 1, 1.	Adjectives can be inflected for some SIX DEGREES: positive, diminuative, relative, intensive, comparative and superlative. [G. 172-74] These two latter degrees involve some rather complex grammatical constructions due to the fact that they can become centers of syntactic or grammatical constructions. [G. 176ff]

E. ADVERBS AND ADVERBIALS

adv	E. 1, 0.	ADVERBS in Aklanon are usually drawn from the adjective class and linked to the verb they modify with it. However, certain time and manner words are adverbs by definition: masunsun, permi, hin-aga, hinduna', makaron, adlaw-adlaw, tigdaywa, tiglima.
dec	E. 2, 0.	DEICTICS are described as location words in Aklanon, they are: iya, una', inha', idto. These forms can grow into many other parts of speech: verbs [ariya, aruna', arinha', adto], time words [makaron, hinduna', kaina, kato anay] and the already listed demonstratives (C. 3, 1 - 3). [G. 185-87]
loc	E. 2, 1.	LOCATIVES are based on the simple deictic forms: rikará, rikarón, rikaná', rikató. [G. 186] [D. 14]

F. OTHER FUNCTION WORDS AND PARTICLES

Qp	F. 1, 0.	THE QUESTION PARTICLES exist in many forms: [G. 192-94]
	F. 1, 1.	NOMINALS: sin-o, anyo, nanyo, kanyo [for personal names] anó, nano [for common nouns]
	F. 1, 2.	VERBAL INTERROGATORS: anó, alin

Qp	F. 1, 3.	ADVERBIAL INTERROGATORS: kan-o, hin-uno [time]; siín [place]; ham-an, pam-an, paáno, paálin [manner]
	F. 1, 4.	ADJECTIVAL INTERROGATORS: pilá, ikapilá, man-o, mauno.
Neg	F. 2, 0.	THE NEGATIVE PARTICLES are four in number:
	F. 2, 1.	owá' - [past time, negative possession] [G. 195]
	F. 2, 2.	indí' - [future time] [G. 195]
	F. 2, 3.	ayáw - [negative command] [G. 196]
	F. 2, 4.	bukón - [negating adjective, nouns, and descriptive statements] [G. 196]
Dp	F. 3, 0.	THE DISCOURSE PARTICLES are crucial to meaningful and idiomatic Aklanon speech. They give color—without interfering with function. To the extent that they give color or add meaning they are adverbial. They have definite slots where they fit into the grammar of the sentence: some precede the word or phrase they oolor, some must immediately follow the word or phrase they color [enclitics], and some come at the very end of the clause or sentence [tags]. [G. 199–209] Examples of such particles are: ngani', gid, abi, anay, man, eang, haeos, tao, pwede, siguro, ha, ho.
conj	F. 4, 0.	CONJUNCTIVES are linkers of a sort, but instead of linking simple words together in modifier fashion they link together sentence elements in a way and meaning all their own. There are two types of conjunctions in Aklanon: - coordinating: ag, ukon, apang, pero, ogaling, ay. - subordinating: busa', pati', intonsis, dahil, tungod, etc.
	F. 5, 0.	DETERMINERS are particles that occur with or before certain parts of speech:
V. det	F. 5, 1.	VERB DETERMINERS are used to identify and modify verbs. Some forms and examples were given on pages 16–17. [G. 58]
N. det	F. 5, 2.	NOUN DETERMINERS are used to identify and mark out nouns. Almost any adjective form is a noun determiner. [G. 132]
A. det	F. 5, 3.	ADJECTIVE DETERMINERS are used to supplement or qualify adjectives: bukon it..., masyado nga..., sobra nga... [G. 175]
prep	F. 6, 0.	PREPOSITIONAL ELEMENTS are particles preceding referent phrases to clarify the exact meaning or location of the phrase: bangód, hanungód, gikan, hasta, tubtub, maeapít, maeayó', etc.
intj	F. 7, 0.	INTERJECTIONS are words or phrases expressing the emotion or sentiment of the speaker; they are not grammatically related to any other part of the utterance in which they occur: sus, línti', kabatás, aróy, súay, hagad pa, kabáy pa, etc.
Tp	F. 8, 0.	The TRANSFORMATION PRODUCT is hay and is used to show the predicate or "news" of a sentence. It usually occurs when the word order puts the topic of the sentence before the predicate, as in: "Imaw hay presidente." ("He is a president.") [G. 197]

VII. "THE CASE OF THE MISSING LINKS" -- MORPHOPHONEMIC CHANGE

As mentioned previously (Unit IV), in order to find a particular word's root or base it is sometimes important to understand the types of changes that occur when going from a root word to various members of the word range. All in all, Aklanon evidences some eight types of sound changes [morphophonemic reduction] which weigh heavily on one's ability to quickly trace or identify a root word. [For a more complete treatment, refer G. 38-49]

1. VOWEL LOSS. In keeping with the general tendency to have two syllable words, very often a vowel in the middle of the [last] syllable of a root word gets dropped when suffixes are added:

FORM	ROOT
sakyan	sakáy
patyon	patáy
nasaktan	sakít
bakeon	bakáe
tawga	tawág
nalisdan	lisód
hugdan	húgod
kanyogan	niyóg

2. VOWEL CHANGE. Whenever a final vowel is open [that is, whenever it is not followed by the glottal stop or an (h) sound] and receives a suffix it is liable to change. Each vowel in Aklanon changes in a different way:

- /a/ changes to /-/ [the glottal stop]:

pangasaw-on	asawa
ginmat-an	matá
mabinaeak-on	baeaka
bilisad-on	bisaea

- /i/ changes to /y/:

agyan	agi
nasikyan	sikí
ilityan	ití
nahaeabyan	eabí

- /o/ changes to /w/:

katubwan	tubó
kababatwan	bató
karugwan	dugó
taw-an	taó

3. METATHESIS is a big term for the changing or switching around of two consonant sounds. Very often the two consonant sounds of the last syllable of a root word [namely the first consonant and the last one] switch position. This switch is always accompanied by vowel loss (see l):

FORM	ROOT
islan	ilis
puston	putos
tamna	tanom
imnon	inom
kan-on	ka-on
katlan	kaeot
bidhanan	bihod

4. CONSONANT CHANGE involves the change of one consonant to another. There are several forms of consonant change in Aklanon:

4,1. /d/ very often changes to /r/ at the end of a root word which is suffixed:

kabukiran	bukid
bayari	bayad
eubiron	eubid
tahora	tahod
nasayoran	sayod

4,2. /d/ sometimes changes to /r/ at the beginning of a root word:

paráyaw	dáyaw
karugwan	dugó

4,3. /d/ can also change to /l/ on occasion:

sugilanon	sugid
bilidlon	bilid

4,4. "e" /ɫ/ changes to /l/ when in the environment of an /i/, as with the -in-- infix:

lina-ga'	ea-ga'
linahóg	eahóg
linumot	eumot
linakdan	eakad
linurpan	európ

5. ASSIMILATION is the change of the /ng/ sound to either /m/ [before the /b, p/ sounds] or to /n/ [before the /d, t, s, l, r, y/ sounds]. With any vowel or the other consonants, the /ng/ remains the same. Note these examples:

sambato	sang bato
sambilog	sang bilog
pandiho'	pang diho'
pandulsi	pang dulsi
kasintuead	kasing tuead

Assimilation is not a common occurrence in Aklanon [it is very common in Tagalog or Pilipino]. However, it is important to understand these changes in order to understand the process of consonant reduction, explained below.

6. CONSONANT REDUCTION involves both assimilation (see 5 above) and then the loss of the first consonant of the root word. The process follows the same rules as given for assimilation, that is, /ng/ changes to /n/ or /m/ on certain occasions. Consonant reduction is very, very frequent in Aklanon, particularly with the pang- distributive prefix and its mang-/nang- forms as well.

FORM	ROOTS
pamahaw	pang bahaw
pamasyar	pang pasyar
pamatay	pang patay
panumdum	pang dumdum
panabas	pang tabas
panimba(h)	pang simba(h)
pangalisod	pang kalisod
pangisda'	pang 'isda'
pangobra(h)	pang 'obra(h)

7. CONTRACTION is another form of consonat loss--the fusion of several words or sounds, particularly in the general flow of speech. Many instances of contraction occur in Aklanon.

7,1. /n/ is often lost at the end of words, particularly when followed by the it marker or the ligature nga; the same is true for the glottal stop /'/ or "-":

bukot	bukon it
owat	owa' it
ham-at mawron	ham-an it mawron
eon it ana	eot-a
naimponat masunod	naimpon it masunod
akong kalisdanan	akon nga kalisdanan
tanang tawo(h)	tanan nga tawo(h)
abong unga'	abo' nga unga'
batang eaeaki	bata' nga eaeaki

7,2. An entire group of contractions center on the five principle function markers: they can be found under their proper entry-- rang, ring, daa, kang, king, sing, etc.

8. REDUPLICATION is the process of repeating part or all of the root word.

8,1. TOTAL REDUPLICATION OF THE ROOT WORD generally denotes a lessening of the quality in the root word:

tawo-tawo / puppet [from tawo / person, man]
baeay-baeay / doll house [from baeay / house]
init-init / warm [from init / hot]

The words tanan-tanan and adlaw-adlaw seem to be exceptions to the idea of lessening the quality of the root word.

8,2. The other forms of reduplication [C_1V_1, NV_1 and $\not{g}V_1$] have already been discussed on pages 8-9.

VIII. CONVENTIONS FOR SPELLING THE AKLANON DIALECT.

The following observations have been followed by the authors in determining the spelling of the entries in this dictionary. Any new words not included as of yet in this book should be spelled according to these observations.

In determining the overall spelling of the Aklanon dialect, there should be two guiding principles. The first and most important is that all words should be spelled the way they are pronounced. The second principle relates to those words which are not spelled the way they are pronounced; all foreign proper names [names of people, places, steamships, buildings, etc.] should be spelled according to the spelling of the foreign language unless there is definitely a native version.

The spelling conventions outlined here are in accordance with a bulletin issued by the Institute of the National Language, dated February 28, 1962, entitled "Guiding Principles for a nationally uniform orthography of all Philippine languages and dialects."

A. LETTERS--OUR TOOLS FOR WRITING. The native Aklanon alphabet consists of the following letters--

VOWELS: a i o u
CONSONANTS: b k d e [fricative ǵ] g
h l m n ng p r s t w y - [medial glottal stop]

All native words should be spelled employing these letters. Even words borrowed from Spanish or English but definitely used natively should be spelled with these letters. The vowel "e" should only be used in those Spanish or English words where it is clearly pronounced or sounded by the majority of Aklanon speakers [as in "relo, pwede, sige"].

The following rules should be noted:

1. "k" must be used instead of "c" in all native words, and even in vernacularized versions of foreign words: "ako, ikaw, kamo, kinahangean, okra, Kalibo, kurae".
2. "e" is used to represent a consonant sound [the voiced velar fricative], but also the vowel sound /e/. If "e" appears in an environment with a vowel it will be known and pronounced as the consonant: "baeay, saeamat, paeay, sueay, eati, kueon, eagari". If "e" appears in an environment with a consonant, then it will be known and pronounced as the vowel: "pwede, babaye, yelo, Edna, pangadye, kalye, permi, Edgar". The traditional spelling of a few words may cause some confusion; however they should only be memorized since they are only a few in number: "maestra, maestro, bueno, puede". These words could be vernacularized, however so many are spelling them in this way that change at this point is not feasible.
3. All Aklanon diphthongs are spelled with "w" or "y" and some vowel sound rather than with the junction of two vowels. Thus it should be "aw", not "ao". Examples of this sort of spelling include: "may, baybay, adlaw, awas, isiw, baboy, uyon, puyot, waea, walig, yabi, yelo, tiya, tiyo, etc."
4. When two vowels do happen to appear together, they are read individually [because the glottal stop is understood to occur between them] as in: "huo, buot, siin, anunuo, bail, tuo, tao, taob, pait, baog, euoy, etc."

The foreign letters adopted into and used in Aklanon spelling are--

C Z X V J F Ñ LL QU CH SH.

These letters are only used in spelling proper names as mentioned above. A simple spelling rule based on Aklanon grammar could be made:

 Words that could be marked with ro [hence, common nouns] should be spelled with the native letters; whereas words that could be marked with si [hence, proper names] should be spelled with the letters of the language they are taken from.

B. BASIC AKLANON SPELLING RULES. Apart from the rules about the use of the native and foreign letters as just presented, there are only two other things that have presented problems in the spelling of Aklanon.

Bl. THE "O" - "U" SPELLING RULES call for a distinction between affixes and root words. Please confer with Unit IV, pages 7-9. There are five simple rules for the spelling of "o" or "u".

Bl, 1. ALL AFFIXES have fixed spellings. Note that reduplications are spelled according to the letters that are reduplicated (see pages 8-9):

inogbunit
sumueod
tambubuyog
anunuo
makaeueuoy
mahueuyon

manog-itlog bue-on kabubut-on nabubuhi'
tagbueunga
makabueusog

Bl, 2. ALL ROOT WORDS OF ONE SYLLABLE are spelled with "o", as in:

eon ro do mo ko hoe ron kros

EXCEPTION: the marker ku is spelled this way to differentiate it from the pronoun form ko: "baeay ko" / my house; "baeay ku pari" / the priest's house.

Bl, 3. ROOT WORDS THAT CONSIST OF IDENTICALLY REDUPLICATED SYLLABLES SHOULD HAVE EACH SYLLABLE SPELLED THE SAME WAY, as in: "lolo, tonton, bo-bo', suksuk, bukbuk, us-us, kuku, tungtung, alisoso, sumsuman, alibutbut".

Bl, 4. ROOT WORDS OF TWO OR MORE SYLLABLES have "o" in the final syllable, and "u" in the second last syllable, and then alternate in this manner thereafter ["o" in the third last syllable, "u" in the fourth last]. Examples: "tubi', sueod, buot, puso', likod, agod, pueos, tanom, kotikot, komusta, abogado, bueobungsod, baeos". REMEMBER that this applies to root words, not the prefixes or affixes attached to them: "tagipuso-on, kabubut-on, sueugo-on, sumueunod, tueun-an, kaean-onon, etc." ROOT WORDS AND AFFIXES EACH FOLLOW THEIR OWN SPELLING RULES.

B2. THE USE OF THE DASH "-" can be outlined in two simple rules:

B2, 1. The "-" is used to show an internal glottal stop before or after a consonant: "man-o, sin-o, gae-om, bue-on, an-om, kan-on, bo-bo', us-us, bi-bi', ba-ba', etc." The dash is always used to separate a prefix ending in a consonant from a root word beginning with a vowel: "manog-itlog, nag-uean, gin-inom, pag-usar, tig-aeani."

B2, 2. The "-" is used to separate reduplicated words of two or more syllables: "tawo-tawo, adlaw-adlaw, baeay-baeay, paino-ino, tanan-tanan, bueak-bueak, sige-sige.
